

Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health
Faculty Annual Report – Conflict of Interest
Sample for 1/1/2005-12/31/2005

Faculty Name:

Appointment to the faculty of The Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health signifies peer recognition of the individual's achievements and excellence in academic areas of research, teaching and service. Extramural consulting and service activities that provide for maintenance and development of professional skills, facilitate the transfer of basic knowledge, and contribute to the richness of the academic experience are faculty privileges and are encouraged. Faculty are expected to be discriminating in the selection of these external activities in order to avoid impairment of the University's reputation and that of its faculty. Perceived and real conflicts of interest and commitment can arise. Full and open disclosure of these activities is the best way to allow the Conflict of Interest Committee to assist you in managing them. This reporting form is for the purpose of providing individual disclosures of outside activities and significant financial interests.
