Charlotte M. Williams, Principal

Dr. Rayner Browne Elementary School (DRBES), built and named in honor of Dr. Grafton Rayner Browne, a well respected African American surgeon, is located in East Baltimore near the Johns Hopkins Hospital complex. The school serves a small population of pre-kindergarten through fifth grade students. Supplemental services and interventions are provided through Title 1 Funds. The instructional program is implemented through the Direct Instruction and Core Knowledge curriculum. DRBES strives to make progress on local, state, and national assessments in pursuit of meeting the "No Child Left Behind" Annual Yearly Progress.
