Baltimore Reads, Inc. is a non-profit 501 (c)(3) organization that collaborates with numerous city, state and national organizations to address the problem of adult illiteracy in Baltimore. Our mission is to advocate and improve the quality of life for educationally disadvantaged adults and families through the Ripken Adult Learning Center and Book Bank programs. As leaders in developing and implementing effective learning services, Baltimore Reads targets individuals who need help with the basic reading, writing, math, employment and life skills that are essential to economic stability and self-sufficiency.

The Ripken Adult Learning Center

Tutors are needed to help adult learners with basic reading and math skills, GED preparation and job development skills. Tutors work as instructional assistants in class and one-on-one with adult learners.

The Book Bank

Volunteers are needed at the Book Bank to sort, stamp and shelve new or gently used children's books that are then distributed to teachers and community organizations in the Baltimore area. Volunteers are also needed to hold book drives to collect new and gently used children's books for the Book Bank.
