

SOURCE's Partner of the Month –February 2012

Name of Organization: Nursing Students for Reproductive Health and Justice

Mission: Johns Hopkins University Nursing Students for Reproductive Health and Justice works to promote women's health and reproductive rights through awareness, advocacy, activism, and community outreach. NSRHJ welcomes any undergraduate, graduate, or doctoral level student who is interested in promoting women's health and expanding knowledge around social justice and reproductive health.

Programs and Services: Patient support program at Johns Hopkins Bayview Medical Center (in development), educational programming for the tri-campus community.

Inspiration: Social justice through universal access to comprehensive reproductive health services.

Proudest Moment : Sixty people came to our very first event, a lunch-time talk to designed to supplement the School of Nursing curriculum, called "Abortion Myths and Realities". The event generated a lot of excitement and discussion.

Greatest Asset : The enormous energy and enthusiasm that we've found among our classmates for this cause.

Biggest Challenge: As a new organization, we are still finding our way and learning what role we can play in the community.

Involvement Opportunities: Attend conferences and talks, organize events, participate in the patient support program, or come to a meeting for discussion and community.

Nursing Students for Reproductive Health and Justice

CONTACT:

Allison Rapp
Co-founder/ President
arapp2@jhu.edu

Emily Hoppe
Co-founder
ehoppe1@jhu.edu

<https://www.facebook.com/pages/JHU-Nursing-Students-for-Reproductive-Health-and-Justice/220536727965782>