Reception in Honor of Professor Timothy Baker
(1925 – 2013)

February 3, 2014
Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health
Childhood home in Mt Washington
Age 1 1/2 with favorite toy
First date with Sue, 1948
Roland Park home for 48 years
Sue and Tim with Mel and Dorothea Thorne, recreating Manet’s Luncheon on the Grass
Timothy Danforth Baker
Baltimore, Md.

(1925)

Candidate for M.P.H.

New York State Health Dept.

B.A., Johns Hopkins University 1948
M.D., Univ. of Md. Medical School 1952

New York State Public Health Trainee.
William Welch’s chair and bookcase
With Dean Stebbins planning the School’s 50th anniversary, 1966
1961 USAID grant, establishing what would become the Department of International Health.
It is hoped that students interested in working in International Health programs will avail themselves of the multidisciplinary approach offered by the Division of International Health Studies at The Johns Hopkins School of Public Health.

Prospective students are expected to have advanced academic degrees and some field experience to be eligible for degree candidacy in this program. Qualified students should anticipate a minimum of nine months work in residence for the M.P.H. degree.

Tuition is $1500.00 per year, but some stipends may be available to students depending upon eligibility and need.

For general information, consult the current catalogue of the School of Public Health.

Application forms may be obtained by writing to:

Dr. Timothy D. Baker
Acting Director
Division of International Health of
The Department of Public Health Administration
615 N. Wolfe Street
Baltimore 5, Maryland
Celebrating the Department’s 50th anniversary with the first DrPH graduate, Tom Hall
Honoring a century of public health service
Family cabin near Camp David
With Mel Thorne's dog
With Mel Thorne's dog
Family all in their llama-wool sweaters at Christmas
Canoeing on Gunpowder
Teaching students to canoe on Gunpowder
With brother and Sue after injury
Winner of Baltimore contest for Lincoln look-alike