Meet the JHSPH Career Services Team

Betty Addison, MS, is the Senior Director of Student Life Services at the Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health and is responsible for maintaining an environment that is focused on students and empowers them to lead and succeed. Through this role, Betty manages student career services, disability support services, and the student life office which provides academic and personal support to students. As a senior educational administrator, Betty has more than 30 years of progressive experience in academic management, student life services, and counseling and mentoring students ranging from high school-aged to adults in transition. A Fulbright Scholar with a master’s degree in counseling from Johns Hopkins University, she has expertise in teaching career strategies to students and providing innovative approaches in the design, planning and implementation of careers, and the step-by-step process of attaining the skills necessary to succeed in a highly competitive job market.

Paul Hutchinson, MS, is the Assistant Director of Career Services for the Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health. In this role, he directs a wide variety of career development workshops, seminars, webinars, and other events throughout the academic year. This includes “Access to Experts” panels which connects students with alumni working in various fields within public health. He also manages the student business card service, helps organizes the annual Public Health Career Fair, and oversees JHSPHConnect, the online career management system. In addition, Paul provides career counseling to both master’s and doctoral level students. Paul is quite knowledgeable about public health careers and how to effectively navigate the application and interview process. In his almost 18 years at Johns Hopkins University, Paul has worked as a support services assistant, a program coordinator and an academic advisor. He holds a Master of Science in Organizational Counseling from Johns Hopkins School of Education and a Bachelor of Arts in Psychology from the University of Maryland, College Park.

Crystal (CJ) Neely, PhD, is the newest member of the JHSPH Career Services Team. As the Assistant Director of Employer Relations, CJ will be building new and strengthening existing relationships with both local and national employers. She oversees employer information sessions throughout the year and organizes the annual Public Health Career Fair. She will be managing the new Career Services Blog and monthly Career Services Newsletter. With a PhD in Microbiology & Immunology and a deep understanding of the diverse career opportunities available to scientific trainees, CJ is available for one-on-one career coaching to individuals within the biomedical research field. Prior to joining the Career Services team at JHSPH, CJ was a postdoctoral fellow at St. Jude Children’s Research Hospital. While at St. Jude, CJ served as the Chair of Career Development and provided a wide variety of career and professional development services to St. Jude’s postdoc population. In addition, when CJ was attending graduate school at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, she regularly mentored undergraduates, graduate students, and medical students.