Healthcare Challenges of Reaching Vulnerable Immigrant Worker Populations
One-day conference for healthcare, government, & non-profit organizations that provide services for immigrants & migrant workers

* Occupational health & safety challenges for immigrant workers – injuries, illness, pesticides, heat, falls, silica, biological hazards, air quality, animal waste, faulty machinery, etc.
* Proven healthcare strategies for reaching vulnerable immigrant worker populations
* Tools and techniques to effectively communicate with advocacy groups about occupational health hazards

Thanks to grant funding support from the National Institute of Occupational Safety & Health (NIOSH), The Johns Hopkins Education & Research Center for Occupational Safety & Health has organized this one-day conference to be held in Dover, Delaware on Monday, June 19, 2017.

The cost is only $25 per person which includes continental breakfast and lunch.

Who Should Attend: Physicians, nurses, public health nurses, social workers, non-profit organizations, community health & housing advocates, as well as companies employing immigrants or migrant workers. Nursing CEU’s are available.

Monday, June 19, 2017, 8:30am - 3:30pm
Kent County Administration Building, Large Conference Room, Second Floor
555 S. Bay Road, Dover, DE 19901

To register online or view the agenda, go to this web link: http://www.jhsph.edu/research/centers-and-institutes/johns-hopkins-education-and-research-center-for-occupational-safety-and-health/immigrant-workers.html

For more information, call the Johns Hopkins School of Public Health at (410) 955-4088 or e-mail Keith Choi at kchoi@jhu.edu